Art Unit: 3728

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claims 1-26 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. § 103(a) as being unpatentable over Lindsay (4,993,551) in view of Fleming (4,993,551) in view of Berry et al (4,880,315). In the reference of Lindsay, the tool holder 10 may be considered to define a utility apron. The apron/holder includes a shell 20,22,24 with a lip portion 20 for contacting the lip of a bucket 12 to support the shell on the bucket. The exterior surface of the apron is at 24 and includes a plurality of pockets 28 disposed thereon. In addition, the interior surface of the apron is at 22 and includes a plurality of pockets 26 disposed thereon.

Although the reference of Lindsay does not disclose specific sizes for the pockets 26 and 28 of the holder 10, it would have been obvious to have made the pockets with any sizes desired, including the sizes claimed by Applicant, since it has been held that the particular size of an article generally will not support patentability. In re Rose, 105 USPQ 237, 240 (CCPA 1955); In re Yount, 80 USPQ 141.

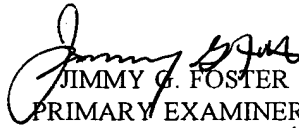

The reference of Berry et al suggests at 28,30 and 36,38 using elastic bands at the opening of pockets for tools or implements, such as scissors and nail clippers. It is apparent that the elastic bands would provide a function of resiliently restricting the pocket openings for providing retention of contents in the pockets but permitting enlargement of the openings under an opening force which pulls the pocket material from the backing for allowing contents in the pockets to be removed. Accordingly, it would have been obvious in view of Berry et al to have provided elastic bands at the openings of the pockets 26,28 of Lindsay for the purpose of resiliently retaining the tools in the pockets.

3. Claims 1-26 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. § 103 as being unpatentable over the references as applied to claims 1-26 above, and further in view of Kikas (3,116,773). The reference of Kikas discloses that elastic pocket openings permit expansion thereof for easy access for removing and replacing articles in the pockets (col 1, line 70 - col. 2, line 2). Accordingly, for this same function it further would have been obvious in view of Kikas to have provided the elastic band at the opening of each of the pockets 26,28 of Lindsay.
